Description

Harlan Coben introduces a collection of the greatest of the great from the origins of pulp fiction. Here are fourteen classic tales of virtue versus villainy that will keep you riveted to your seat.

Legendary writers you've already heard of such as Dashiell Hammett, Erle Stanley Gardner, Cornell Woolrich and Raymond Chandler are here. Legendary writers that you should have heard of such as Frederick Nebel, Paul Cain, Carroll John Daly, George Harman Coxe, Horace McCoy, Charles G. Booth, Leslie T. White, Norbert Davis, William Rollins Jnr and Thomas Walsh are also where they should be – with the greats.

Tailor-made for pulp novices and hard-boiled fans with a soft spot for the masters, this collection shows that some writing has an edge that time just can't dull.
